Professor David Frankel

Professor

Qualifications

BA Syd, MA Syd, PhD Göteborg, FAHA

Professor David Frankel studied archaeology at the University of Sydney and Gothenburg University, where he specialised on Cypriot prehistory. After some years in the Department of Western Asiatic Antiquities, The British Museum, he returned to Australia in 1978 to take up a lectureship at La Trobe University, where he is now a Professor in Archaeology. In 1993 he was elected a Fellow of the Australian Academy of the Humanities, and from 1996 to 1998 served on the Humanities Panel of the Australian Research Council. His research interests include Australian Aboriginal archaeology with particular reference to south-eastern Australia; and the archaeology of Bronze Age Cyprus from the perspective excavations at Marki-Alonia and Deneia (including issues of site formation and archaeological construction, migration and ethnicity, demography and social interaction).

Research Projects

The Social Archaeology of Bronze Age Cyprus. Excavations at Marki Alonia

This ARC-funded project, undertaken jointly with Dr Jenny Webb, is built on the extensive excavations at the site of Marki Alonia, a prehistoric Bronze Age settlement in central Cyprus. A comprehensive study of the first phase of fieldwork is D. Frankel and J.M. Webb, Marki Alonia. An Early and Middle Bronze Age Town in Cyprus. Excavations 1990–1994, Studies in Mediterranean Archaeology Volume CXXIII:1, Paul Åströms Förlag, Jonsered 1996. The final site report appeared in 2006 as D. Frankel and J.M. Webb, Marki Alonia. An Early and Middle Bronze Age Settlement in Cyprus. Excavations 1995–2000. Studies in Mediterranean Archaeology Volume CXXIII:2, Paul Åströms Förlag, Sävedalen.

Deneia: A study of regionalism, population and society in Bronze Age Cyprus

This is a collaborative project funded by the Australian Research Council, co-directed with Jenny Webb and Maria Iacovou (University of Cyprus). 1000 years, from the beginning of the Early Bronze Age (2,400 BCE) to the end of the Late Bronze Age. A.

A volume reporting the survey, excavation and finds will be submitted for publication in late 2007.

Politiko Kokkinorotsos. A Chalcolithic site in central Cyprus

This project, jointly directed with Jenny Webb, involves the excavation and publication of a Chalcolithic settlement in central Cyprus. It acquires particular importance as the material culture of this period is very poorly known in this region of the island. A preliminary field season was carried out in 2006 and a major excavation in 2007. The latter produced over one tonne of pottery, over 150 kg of animal bone and large quantities of ground and chipped stone artefacts.

Aboriginal Archaeology of Western Victoria

This ARC-funded Collaborative Research Project with Aboriginal Affairs Victoria involved the analysis and assessment of largely unpublished excavations carried out by the Victoria Archaeological Survey in the 1970s. Work carried out together with Dr Caroline Bird has shown that some rockshelter sites in the Grampians-Gariwerd ranges were used from at least 20,000 years ago, rather than only in the last few thousand years, as had been previously thought. An important component of this research project has been the active involvement of representatives of Aboriginal communities in the area, and outcomes include the preparation of material for them.
