Campus Comedy Competition

May 18th saw the La Trobe Eagle Bar host the annual Campus Comedy competition. Multitudes gathered around the crudely constructed staging to watch La Trobe's finest stand up comedians strut their stuff. 4 Brave souls had made it this far in the competition; the cream had certain risen to the top.

Hals Metcalfe started the proceedings with her public transport stories to which most of the audience could relate to. Being all the way from Coldstream, Hals certainly garnered the sympathy vote from the judges. Next was Owen Scully who proceeded to enlighten us on the group dynamics with the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. A lecture on the Metrosexual male culture was then presented by Tin Nguyen. He exquisitely described the type of Male that spends more time shopping and in the bathroom than the girlfriend he's trying to attract.

We saved the best till last. On stage stepped an elegant and sassy public relations officer who is a currently in the throws of her second degree, Podiatry. Katrina Richards showed the judges a confident style and some genuinely funny candour about Academics and study. The Judges where unanimous in there decision and Katrina will be off to represent La Trobe in the up coming university state finals.

Congratulations to all of the contestants and lets hope Katrina can "out-funny" her competitors in the finals.

Tin, Katrina and Hals laugh it up
