Aspire student Nash Kemp, his decision to study a Bachelor of Exercise Science/Master of Exercise Physiology was a highly personal one. Not only does he have a passion for health and fitness, but he’s also spent years accompanying his brother Tate to physical therapy at Melbourne’s Cerebral Palsy Education Centre. Tate has lived with cerebral palsy since birth. Nash started helping out at the centre when he was in high school, where he would look after his young clients and give their parents some time to rest.

‘Bringing around the kids, it’s always good to see them smile and be happy,’ he says.

Tate and Nash have also raised a formidable sum of cash for the centre through their involvement in the Melbourne Marathon. It was this community service that made Nash a perfect candidate for Aspire. The student said receiving the offer took some of the pressure of Year 12 off and allowed him to continue his community service.

‘I still wanted to do really well, but I was able to know there was a little bit of a back-up plan if things didn’t go according.’

Nash sees himself working in a clinical setting after graduation, possibly one devoted to caring for children. Tate says he’s proud of his brother’s decision to study Exercise Science and Exercise Physiology.

‘He’s grown up with it (cerebral palsy), so it’s good to see he wants to make a difference in people’s lives, but as for their physical therapy sessions together, Tate has some feedback.’

‘He sometimes pushes me too hard, but it’s not too bad, he jokes.’

Aspire student Nash is committed to helping people like his brother Tate.

If you’ve ever volunteered for charity or had a leadership role at school, you’ll know what it feels like to help out the community. Giving back feels good. But did you know it could also help you get into uni?

Study Abroad

You’ll be immersed in a different culture... and have fun

Traveling across Europe, studying among ancient Roman ruins and landing a spot in a Dolce & Gabbana campaign. It’s fair to say Natalie made the most of her semester exchange at Università Cattolica di Sacro Cuore in Milan, Italy. ‘University in Italy is so different to Aussie universities. There is a historical and cultural difference. My university was built on top of an old monastery and ancient Roman ruins, which were still visible in some classrooms.’

One day, Natalie arrived back from a sojourn in Florence with her brother, just in time for the final day of Milan Fashion Week. ‘We spotted a big crowd in the middle of Corso Vittorio Emanuele. I said we should wait around – maybe a famous designer will come out. And then somebody mentioned Stefano Gabbana’s name.’

Out of the crowd three models emerged, laughing and posing for the cameras. Suddenly, the photographer and models directed Natalie and her brother into the scene. ‘For the next half hour, we had fun, posing and dancing around like a traditional Italian fiesta. They told us we’ll be featured in their 2019 campaign. At the end, we could not believe what had just happened.’

‘Exchange is a once in a lifetime opportunity that allows you to meet people who’ll be your friends for life. You’ll see new places, eat new foods and learn things about yourself and the world we live in. If I could do it again, I would.’ — Natalie

You’ll expand your mind as well as your horizons

How do you become a war correspondent? ‘That’s what fourth-year Bachelor of Laws/Bachelor of Media and Communications student Elliot Goodyer planned to find out. While on semester exchange at Chulalongkorn University in Thailand, an opportunity presented itself.’

‘My Advanced Reporting ajarn (professor) Mick lent me a book called “55 Days: The Rise and Fall of Saigon.” It turns out the author, Jonkoping University where she was an in-depth placement at a local hospital. ‘I was placed in emergency care with the most incredible preceptors who gave me so much of their knowledge. They even organised a day with the ambulance, which was an incredible experience. Because of that, I’m thinking of going back to university in five years to study postgraduate paramedicine. ‘I’m so grateful for this experience as it has given me so much confidence, exposure, knowledge and experience that I’ll take home to complete my final year of my nursing degree.’

You’ll have access to financial support

Keen to go overseas but not sure you have the funds? ‘We offer a $2,000 mobility grant for eligible students going on their first semester of exchange. You can also apply for a range of mobility scholarships that award up to $7,000. Otherwise, you may be eligible for the interest-free OS-HELP loan or continued Centrelink payments for extra financial support. You’ll also be covered by La Trobe’s health and travel insurance for the duration of your exchange for free. ’

Interested? Find out more at our information sessions or get in touch.

Information sessions are incredibly useful and focus on helping you get your application in before the final deadline. You may have some questions unique to your situation, so make sure to speak with a La Trobe Abroad adviser at your campus or submit your enquiry online at: latrobe.edu.au/abroad

Overseas Short Programs

You don’t have to be away for a full semester to experience exchange, as Lainie explains.

I couldn’t commit to the time and cost of a full semester. At Orientation, I found out programs could be as short as two weeks and I was eligible for funding. At that point, I knew the opportunity was too good to pass up.’

I came to uni pretty much on my own, so joining a club was a way for me to make friends with similar interests. Having friends around you on campus makes an astounding difference to your mood. I love the board game days, it’s a good way to get involved with games that aren’t “mainstream” with lots of friendly competition and fun.’

— Madison, La Trobe University Games Club (Bendigo)

‘A PhySoc inter-university physics careers night helped me network with students from other universities, as well as meet and form connections with academic and industry physicists. PhySoc is also a social club where students can meet up and have fun playing video games or eat cheap dumplings on campus’.

— George, Physics Society

‘Although there are opportunities to make friends in tutorials and around campus, joining a club has been the best way to meet like-minded people at university and forge longer lasting friendships. As a member of the book club, I’ve loved being exposed to new literature and having the opportunity to discuss it with others in a comfortable environment.’

— Imogen, Book Club

‘As club president, I’ve learned how to become a leader and fulﬁll my dreams of positively reaching others by working as a team. I’ve developed independence and organisational skills that I take with me to work.

— Chetna, A Look Into African Society (ALIAS)

‘I’ve really enjoyed learning about gardening; how to plant seeds, make compost, prepare soil before planting and propagate plants. I’ve also really liked meeting people from different countries, of different ages and ethnic backgrounds. It’s a great way to have new experiences and learn and grow as a person.’

— Lilian, The Patch

Choose your path to La Trobe

Picture the perfect course. Now imagine knowing for sure you’ll get there somehow. Maybe you’re a Year 12 student finishing up high school, or maybe you haven’t studied in a while. Either way, you know you’ve got options.

There’s more ways to get into university than you think. You can get in with your ATAR alone, or combine it with community service and be rewarded with a conditional early offer through our Aspire Early Admissions Program. You can get a head start by studying two first-year units before subjects through VCE Plus while still at high school. Or, you could complete a Diploma of Tertiary Studies and gain direct entry into a range of La Trobe degrees.

Whatever your story, remember there are plenty of ways to get into your dream course. Don’t forget to consider how Aspire (page 10) and VCE Plus can help you with getting into your dream course.

Law and criminology

How has technology reshaped the nature of crime? How free should speech be? Can we legislate equality? Some of the biggest debates of our times challenge our ideas of the relationship between society and the law. With a law or criminology degree from La Trobe, you’ll build the skills to step up and make the case for change.

Practice, practice, practice
Take a stance in our moot courts. Do a placement in a big-city law firm or community organisation like the Consumer Action Law Centre. Solve real-world problems in the award-winning Fast Track Clinic at the Asylum Seeker Resource Centre. Be mentored by professionals every step of the way. And that’s just the Asylum Seeker Resource Centre.

All kinds of clever
At La Trobe, you’ll develop essential legal skills including advocacy, mediation, negotiation, critical thinking and dispute resolution. You can also choose from a range of electives to suit your interests, whether it’s cyber law, climate law or human rights. When it comes to criminology, you’ll explore why people commit crimes and learn about international crime, forensic science, sentencing, detention and criminal law so you get the bigger picture.

Challenge yourself
We help you develop innovative thinking, critical thought, communication skills and leadership potential in interactive tutorials, so you can tackle the big problems. Advocate for Indigenous Australians or prevent further damage to our environment. Support women fleeing domestic violence or rehabilitate juvenile offenders. At La Trobe, you’ll learn how empathy makes you a better lawyer, social justice professional or criminology expert.

HELP
An Australian Government loan scheme to help eligible students enrolled in a CSP pay their student contributions.

Honours
Honours studies are advanced studies attached to undergraduate degrees that give you a higher qualification than a three-year degree. Many people do Honours so they can continue to postgraduate studies, and many La Trobe undergraduate courses offer an Honours year. Depending on your course, this may involve an additional year of study, although some courses have it built in.

Industry placements
Industry placements integrate educational theory and workplace experience, preparing you to be work ready, world ready and future ready.

Major
A sequence of related subjects spread over the duration of an undergraduate course. You’ll usually undertake at least one subject from your major each semester, and you have to pass each subject in order to move on to the next one in the sequence.

Non-Year 12 applicants
You don’t have to come straight from high school to get into uni. There are plenty of options available to you, including the Special Tertiary Admissions Test (STAT), Work Recognition and Tertiary Preparation Program.
